We all know that health care is at a crossroads. Regardless of any new directions that national policy will take, providers will be under even greater pressure to reduce costs. We expect that providers will be under financial risk, and patients will bear more costs.

What remains constant is the need for guidance and data to navigate a successful path to better health. ICLOPS is reinforcing its commitment to help providers to succeed on this path, through its strategic consultation and technology. To reflect what lies ahead, ICLOPS is also changing its name on January 1, 2017, to Roji Health Intelligence.

We think a name is important. “ICLOPS” does not express who we are. That is why we are making this change.

In a Japanese garden, the Roji (RO-gee) is a structured path to the teahouse—a place of health, physical and spiritual nourishment. Natural and man-made guideposts along the Roji help Roji Health Intelligence is dedicated to creating forward-thinking, technology-based solutions and a structured, collaborative process to help you achieve that goal.

This is a name change only. The company, management, technology and solutions remain the same. The ICLOPS website and client portal will go through a transition over time, with the new website, www.rojihealthintel.com, to go live on January 1, 2017.
